Mr. Faude preached in Christ Church one Sunday during the holidays during a visit here and was very much liked. Mr. Faude is a man about forty-five years of age and has proven a strong power in the church at Minneapolis, ere he has built a beautiful new edifice. His congregation numbers more than a thousand members. He is a man strong in the pulpit, interested in all charitable enterprises and a man of genial personality, who has made himself a place as one of the leading rectors of the Northwest. Mr. Faude was formerly rector of an Episcopal Church at Michigan City in this State.

The election of officers for the ensuing year took place, resulting as follows: President, Dr. C. E. Covey, Detroit; vice president, Dr. N. G. Smith, of Indiana; treasurer, Dr. C. K. Ewing, of Indianapolis; press reporter, Dr. W. B. Clarke, Indianapolis. The secretary, Dr. R. C. Kelsey, of this city, holds over permanently.

The afternoon session opened with a paper on "The Relation" of Pharmacy to Medicine," by Dr. J. R. Perry, of this city, which was an able plea for fuller education in pharmaceutical science in medical colleges. He also detailed many interesting experiments upon the physiological action of pepsin, coming to the conclusion that it had none unless experimented with in combination with an acid.

Drs. Casebeer of Indiana, Oliver of Waterloo, Ia., and Manker of this city read papers on "Hernia," all coming to the conclusion that the injection treatment gave the best results. Interesting discussions followed, participated in by Dr. Van Horn of Homer, Mich., Bickmore of Cincinnati and Clarke of this city. A paper entitled "A Few Thoughts About Gold" was read by Dr. Glass, of New York city, especially as to its value in the diseased condition called sclerosis. He expressed his preference for the combinations with bromide and arsenic. "The Serum Craze" was vigorously treated by Dr. S. W. Dodds, of St. Louis, in a animal-derived products, and Dr. Glass, of New York, in discussion, especially supported her criticism of the diphtheria anti-

Dr. H. S. Cunningham, of this city, then followed with a long essay on "Sanitary which embraced the whole field and which received very favorable comment in the discussion which followed. VACCINATION MASS MEETING.

Speeches by Judge Bartholomew. Banker Piehn and Dr. Leverson.

As heretofore announced, the American Association of Physicians and Surgeons, now in session in this city, created a section on vaccination, for the first time in the history of medical societies, desiring the fullest pro-and-con discussion. The subject has been quite freely handled during the three days' sessions, but last evening was set apart exclusively for its disposal at a mass meeting, open to the general public. Governor Matthews had promised to preside over this meeting, but at the last moment was prevented by urgent business. The meeting was therefore presided over by the president, Dr. C. E. Covey, in the presence of several hundred people, in the Representative Hall of the Statehouse. On calling to order the president introduced Judge P. W. Bartholomew, who made a short address on the merits of the broad plan upon which the association was formed, and also as to the subject of the evening ect of the evening The president then called upon the chairman of the section, Dr. W. B. Clarke, of this city, to take charge of the work. Dr. Clarke spoke briefly, and then announced that the president of the Anti-vaccination Society of America had just arrived in the city, having come purposely to attend this meeting. This gentleman, he said, was a prominent banker in Iowa, who had suffered domestic affliction because of vaccination, and then introduced the gentle-man, L. H. Piehn, of Nora Springs, Ia., to the audience. Mr. Piehn then told how his attention had been attracted to the subject, because his sister and daughter had died from the effects of vaccination, and de-clared that he was at all times willing to devote his time and money to the object of relieving humanity from the incubus of vaccination. Mr. Piehn then introduced Dr. T. V. Gifford, of Kokomo, president of the Indiana Anti-vaccination League. of the Indiana Anti-vaccination League, who made a short talk regarding the origin and progress of the work in this State, and then introduced Dr. M. R. Leverson, of Port Richmond, Staten island, New York, secretary of the Anti-vaccination Society of America, who was to make the principal address of the evening on the subject of "The Pathology of Vaccination." The lecture was profusely illustrated with large and small pictures and diagrams, which were passed through the audience.

"The assertion, dogmatically made in works upon the practice of medicine, that one attack of certain diseases is protective against subsequent attacks has little evidence to support it. Its general reception by the profession affords an illustration of Pulaski, seven; Steuben, six; Sullivan, ten; the illogical character of the medical mind, anderourg, nine; Vigo, six, Wayne, ten. which is shown by the author in a former The appropriation for maintenance was work to be trained in not thinking through 80,000, to which was added $1,006.26, shop re- | the defects of our schools, from the primary "Among the diseases of which the protective character of one attack was most posinot, a balance of $4.81 remains. The doctrine needs to be scientifically considered, but the author does not expect it ever will be so considered until the empirical nonsense of Jenner, Koch and Pasteur be got rid of. This doctrine is the foundation on which all those absurdities Member Austin, of the Board of rest. It led to inoculation for smallpox, which was as much a medical fad of the eighteenth century as vaccination is of the nineteenth. But whatever may be said of Acquiring relationship in these days to this doctrine, no man of science has ever oreign personages of importance seems seriously claimed that an attack of one disacter from smallpox, the ground will be cut away from beneath the feet of the advocates of vaccination. This has, in fact, been done by Dr. Hubert Boens, of Belgium, and Drs. Crookshank and Creighton, of England, from whose labors this paper will be largely "In the census of 1870 is a table which shows much more smallpox in 1860 than in 1850, and still more in 1870 than in 1860; that is to say, smallpox had become more prevalent with the spread of vaccination; also, in each year smallpox was far less fatal than measles, scarlet fever or consumption." Dr. Leverson then called attention to the remarkable fact that vaccination was accepted without any attempt being made to ascertain whether milkers and grooms caught their diseases from the cow and the jorse, or the cow and horse from the former, and stated that this inquiry has now been made by Dr. Boeus, of Brussels, with the result that every case of "spontaneous cowpox" and "spontaneous horsepox" which came to his notice was traced by them to syphilitic milker or a syphilitic groom." He then adopted, with some slight change, the terrible arraignment addressed by Dr. Boens to the vaccinists: 'Continue, gentlemen, to vaccinate if you choose, and be-cause you make money by it; but never forget, pseudo-scientists and false physicians that you are, that when you sow vaccine among the people they reap the pox." The author then examined the pathology of the other sources of vaccine matter. showing it to be, when substantially variola-tion, not syphilization, and he thereby accounts for the increased severity of smallpox epidemics, introducing the instructive statistics of Leicester in a table, showing how the death rate fell in proportion to the abandonment of vaccination, which abandonment commenced in 1872, when 91.7 of the births were vaccinated, with a death rate of 26.8 per 1,000, and fell in 1889 to 5.1 per cent, of birth vaccination and a death rate of 17.4 per 1,000 of the population. He then called attention to the growth of cancer, and, without expressing an opinion, suggested that, as in vaccinating there is poured into the blood the cells of an animal that matures in five to six years, as against twenty to twenty-five, the growth period of mankind, and as cancer prevalent, should be studied with a view to determine if there is any connection be-A QUEER LEGAL TRICK

I ask this association to redeem the profession."

Dr. Glass, of New York city, expressed admiration for the effort of Dr. Leverson, and suggested a vote of thanks, after which the meeting adjourned. NEW COMMITTEE

Magistrate Sears Will Ask for Deputy

Two anonymous letters were the basis for affidavits made in magistrate Sears's court last Saturday evening by Thomas Long, a former employe at Chandler & Taylor's shops on West Washington street, charging Frank Allen and Frank Andrews with carof which warrants were issued and the men arrested. Long is one of the strikers who have caused Chandler & Taylor considerable trouble since the strike. In company with an old soldier, Long went into the magistrate's office. Magistrate Sears was acquainted with the old man and had a conversation with him. The veteran told him that Long wanted to file affidavits against Allen and Andrews charging them with carrying concealed weapons, but wished to make them on "information and belief" based on two unsigned letters he had received from "an unknown friend." Magistrate Sears says he did not think it would be safe for Long to make an affidavit on such grounds, but if his deputy prosecutor, George Winpenny, thought it was regular, he had no objections to offer. Winpenny and Long were called into the conference and Long exhibited the letters. After reading them Winpenny advised Justice Spears it would be safe for Long to make affidavits on the strength of
